Exploring the Role of African Americans in Times of War
103rd Annual Meeting and Conference Hosted By the Founders of Black History Month Coming to Indianapolis, Oct. 3-7

What: Thousands of educators, historians, scholars and students will arrive in Indianapolis for the 103rd meeting and conference of The Association for the Study of African American Life and History (ASALH), the founders of Black History Month. This year’s theme is “African Americans in Times of War.” Commemorating the end of the First World War in 1918, the conference will explore the paradoxes of war and the Black liberation struggle for freedom and equality abroad and at home in America. Brig. Gen. Wayne Black of the Indiana National Guard will serve as honorary conference chair.

Plenary sessions will explore the experiences of Black soldiers, veterans and civilians in wartime, an African-American Heritage Bus Tour, a film festival, luncheons and a banquet featuring historic oral interviews with former Black military members will highlight the conference.

Background: Established on September 9, 1915 by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, we are the Founders of Black History Month and carry forth the work of our founder, the Father of Black History. We continue his legacy of speaking a fundamental truth to the world that Africans and peoples of African descent are makers of history and co-workers in what W. E. B. Du Bois called, “The Kingdom of Culture.” ASALH’s mission is to create and disseminate knowledge about Black History, to be, in short, the nexus between the Ivory Tower and the global public. We labor in the service of Blacks and all humanity.
