

Gloria J. Browne-Marshall is a Professor of Constitutional Law at John Jay College and a founding member of the Gender Studies faculty. She teaches constitutional law, race and politics, gender and justice, and evidence classes in the graduates and undergraduates. She was a visiting lecturer at Vassar College and a civil rights attorney prior to coming to John Jay College. Gloria litigated cases for the Southern Poverty Law Center, Community Legal Services of Philadelphia, and the NAACP LDF. Gloria was a law clerk in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania as well as in the Court of Common Pleas in Philadelphia. Her books include "The Voting Rights

War: The NAACP and the Ongoing Struggle for Justice" (Rowman & Littlefield), "The African-American Woman: 400 Years of Perseverance" (forthcoming), "The U.S. Constitution: An African-American Context" (Law & Policy Group Press), and "Race, Law, and American Society: 1607 to Present" 2d (Routledge). "Race, Law, and American Society" is the seminal book connecting 400 years of American racial history.

Professor Browne-Marshall has received many awards for work on equality under law. She speaks nationally and internationally on constitutional and human rights issues. In 2019, Gloria addressed audiences in France as an invited speaker at the American Library in Paris and met with the Secretary of State and Secretary of Culture in Luanda, Angola. She has served on many national boards that focus on women, children and the law. Currently, Gloria J. Browne-Marshall is a member of the Executive Council of the Association for the Study of African American Life and History (ASALH) as well as ASALH's 400th Commemoration Chair for the African arrival (1619-2019). In 2020, Professor Browne-Marshall will be the Special Issue Editor for "Phylon" a peer-reviewed journal. She is a columnist and a playwright.