

JAMES STEWART

LIVING LEGACY AWARD

Dr. James B. Stewart (Jim), a long-standing supporter of ASALH, has served on the ASALH Advisory Board, the Executive Council and a past National President. He is also a past member of the Editorial Board of The Journal of African American History. He is a founder of the Dr. Edna McKenzie branch in Pittsburgh and the immediate past president of the Manasota Branch. He is also active with the Florida Coalition of ASALH branches. Jim is a Professor Emeritus at Penn State University. He authored, co-authored, and edited 16 books and published over 150 articles in professional journals including The Journal of African American History. Currently, Jim is a Senior Fellow at the Institute on Race, Power, and Political Economy at the New School (NYC) and the inaugural Director of the Black Economic Research Center for the 21st Century. He served as President of The National Economic Association and the National Council for Black Studies. He is the recipient of numerous awards. Jim is married to Dr. Caryl Sheffield and the couple resides in Sarasota, Florida. They have four daughters and eight grandchildren and continue their passion of collecting art of the African diaspora.